‘Really complex’- The important rules Aussies must know before heading overseas

Families will be able to reunite, and Aussies will be able to explore the world again after international travel opens back up tomorrow. Here are the rules you need to follow.

But international holidays will look very different from what they used to.

The ongoing complications of Covid-19 will mean travellers will need to be extremely organised and informed about the rules and requirements of their destination country before they can even set foot on the plane.

Australian Traveller founder Quentin Long warned Aussie travellers that planning their trip would be no easy task.

“It is really, really complex,” Mr Long told the Today show on Friday.

“My No. 1 piece of advice is use a travel agent because they will know all of the rules and protocols. “They will be able to tell you, for example, does the airline require you to have a PCR test even if you don't need it to arrive in the country. Those sort of complexities are what we are facing and you will need as much to happen as possible.”

- But for Aussies who are hesitant to fork out the funds on a travel agent, a self-guided trip will be difficult.....Below are the rules and restrictions for Australia's favourite overseas destinations from next month.
